KIGALI STORM

Posted on October 15, 2011 by Keghart

Alan Whitehorn reading poetry at conference in Armenia

Category: Opinions

Alan Whitehorn, October 15 -20, 2011

Kigali Storm

I can see the dark clouds approaching on the horizon.
I'm sure a terrible storm is arriving ever so soon.
Should I pack my bags
and depart from the city
before they close the main airport?
Or should I try
to ride out the torrential rains?
Most of my professional colleagues are leaving.
Should I stay to help others
who are far more vulnerable?
I know a monstrous storm is rapidly approaching.
I wonder what is the wiser thing to do.

Alan Whitehorn, October 15 -20, 2011

Kigali Storm

I can see the dark clouds approaching on the horizon.
I'm sure a terrible storm is arriving ever so soon.
Should I pack my bags
and depart from the city
before they close the main airport?
Or should I try
to ride out the torrential rains?
Most of my professional colleagues are leaving.
Should I stay to help others
who are far more vulnerable?
I know a monstrous storm is rapidly approaching.
I wonder what is the wiser thing to do.