

Posted on January 9, 2012 by Keghart

Category: Did You Know?

Russian poet Valeri Prousov has said: "Armenian is the unknown beauty of languages." Armenologist Schultz of Hungary has said: "The Armenian language has 40,000 root words, while many other languages' root words don't exceed 10,000." When Armenologist Soltex of the United States and French Armenologist Feytie suggested to the UN to adopt Armenian as an international language, they said : "We are certain that if there is a language which can offer the exact meaning of words , it's the Armenian language. We suggest that it be given preference, rather than Esperanto."

Russian poet Valeri Prousov has said: "Armenian is the unknown beauty of languages." Armenologist Schultz of Hungary has said: "The Armenian language has 40,000 root words, while many other languages' root words don't exceed 10,000." When Armenologist Soltex of the United States and French Armenologist Feytie suggested to the UN to adopt Armenian as an international language, they said : "We are certain that if there is a language which can offer the exact meaning of words , it's the Armenian language. We suggest that it be given preference, rather than Esperanto."

