While our traditional political parties are mostly mum in offering solutions to current challenges and one of them interested only to come to power in RoA through whatever means, we hear the sane voice of an independent Diasporan Noubar Afeyan, the entrpreneur philanthropist scientist. We might not agree with all the points, but how do we expect to have consensus if we don't engage in conversations or interviews like this. At the beginning of the interview on Civilnet with Eric Hacopian, he talks about the new variant of Covid, but the rest is all about Diaspora, Artsakh and RoA.
