

DESTINATION 2015

Posted on March 29, 2014 by Keghart

Category: Opinions

Lucine Kasbarian is an artist and writer who served as president of the NYU Armenian Club in college and as a graduation gift from her parents, worked in Kessab, Syria, with the Land & Culture Organization (LCO) to rebuild Armenian monuments. In the '80s she volunteered with Organization Terre et Culture in Kessab, rebuilding an ancient Armenian chapel. Kessab felt like the homeland she'd been denied as a result of being a descendant of uprooted genocide survivors.

Lucine Kasbarian is an artist and writer who served as president of the NYU Armenian Club in college and as a graduation gift from her parents, worked in Kessab, Syria, with the Land & Culture Organization (LCO) to rebuild Armenian monuments. In the '80s she volunteered with Organization Terre et Culture in Kessab, rebuilding an ancient Armenian chapel. Kessab felt like the homeland she'd been denied as a result of being a descendant of uprooted genocide survivors.

She writes, "Knowing that the Kessab churches have been attacked and in many cases destroyed (and for all I know, this may include our renovated St. Stepanos Chapel) is both heartbreaking and outrageous. Today's misfortunes sadly prove that history does indeed repeat itself when perpetrators are not brought to justice the first time."

After studying art and journalism in university, Lucine worked for book publishers, promoting books and publicizing authors, and as a writer and editor for a number of magazines in New York City. You can read more about her work on her website. Visit Axis of Logic. Lucine regularly contributes to Keghart.com with articles, cartoons and commentaries.

Contact Lucine Kasbarian

