Khachaturian's 11-minute "Spartacus" adagio is worth all of Azerbaijan plus Turkey.

As Armenians we do not allow arch enemies like Turkey, or others from within, to destroy our resolve to rise from the ashes. We need to learn why these failures are being allowed by forces of "importance". Could it also be that Armenian successes have threatened nations. Their option to destroy, a peace loving and superior nation, has been to utilize criminal nations and individuals.

Suit yourself. Keep in mind that what counts is not how many times you lost and fell down and tasted dirt but rather how many times you got up and kept fighting. As long as we are in the game, we have not lost...

I know , I feel the same pain, the confusion, the anger and the lies but we still have a country and we must continue our fight to protect our own. We cannot give up, that's what our enemies want. If you are out then they have won, is this what you want?

In our history, good or bad, there are lessons to be learned. The question is are we doing the necessary job to teach them, to remember them, unity means giving voice to the voiceless. We need to bring about relevancy even in tragedy. Get involved !!!

I no longer want to hear anything about Armenia or Armenians, period! I still haven't recovered from the pain of losing a war of that magnitude while being told all the misleading lies that we were winning the war! Just too much pain!! Count me out!
