THE LIFE AND TIMES OF (MOSTLY) ARMENIAN WORDS

Posted on December 30, 2012 by keghart.com

Category: Opinions

Jirair Tutunjian, editor of Keghart.com, delivered his second annual talk on Armenian etymology at the AGBU Alex Manoogian Cultural Centre on Nov. 9, 2012.

The two-hour talk included the fascinating stories of 40 Armenian words, about Armenian words derived from Arabic, Assyrian, Greek, Hebrew, Persian, and Turkish, etymology as a political tool, and 40 pairs of Armenian and English words which are similar. In an additional "sidebar" Mr. Tutunjian talked about the mysterious origins of the Armenian alphabet.

Below are the 2-part video recordings of the event:

Part 1

Jirair Tutunjian, editor of Keghart.com, delivered his second annual talk on Armenian etymology at the AGBU Alex Manoogian Cultural Centre on Nov. 9, 2012.

The two-hour talk included the fascinating stories of 40 Armenian words, about Armenian words derived from Arabic, Assyrian, Greek, Hebrew, Persian, and Turkish, etymology as a political tool, and 40 pairs of Armenian and English words which are similar. In an additional "sidebar" Mr. Tutunjian talked about the mysterious origins of the Armenian alphabet.

Below are the 2-part video recordings of the event:

Part 1

Part 2